Dear Miss Morgan :

I think you must be a Sibyl, with the gift of prophecy.

You always drew a big hall that we propose to make at the ranch with two horse armors. I did not have the horse armors but I got two to-day and they are beauties.

There is no reason now why we should not go ahead with the hall,— of course in due time,— when the horse armors have been paid for.

2. I got your sketch of the Gables at Wyntoon, showing the fine dining room and living room with alcoves. I like it very much.

I would suggest, however, that the living room go clear through to the front of the building, getting its illumination from the front.

Then we would have on one corner a men's dressing room and on the other corner a women's dressing room, and nothing else on that floor.

I am returning the plans with this suggestion drawn.

3. The Angel cottage is probably too big as an eight-room cottage, but do you not think it surely should be a six-room cottage?

The Pinnacles has five bedrooms and the smallest cottage has four, and a couple of maids' bedrooms; so that this important cottage should have at least six.

We could do this by having two bedrooms and a sitting room on the ground floor and four bedrooms on the second floor.

I will not go any further into these matters until I see you.

Sincerely yours,

Miss Julia Morgan,
McCloud, California.
