

THESE ARE THE FRUITS . . .

Propagandists for racial integration are fond of pointing out that young children, when mixed with Negroes, show absolutely no racial "prejudice" or awareness of skin color. This, they contend, "proves" that race consciousness is unnatural, and that children are taught racial "bias" by their elders. That sounds like a good argument, but it isn't, because the truth is that young children are equally unprejudiced against dirt, poisonous insects and a multitude of other harmful or undesirable things. The fact that very young children display no racial awareness proves nothing—except that they need to be taught racial self-respect along with their table manners and personal hygiene.

On the other hand, if white children are thrown together with Negroes at every possible opportunity (as these Los Angeles City College students were) and are taught that racial integration is one of nature's noblest virtues, then scenes like the ones shown here will eventually be duplicated on every college campus in America . . . It's being planned that way.
