JOSE FAJARDO was born in Guane-Provincia Pinar Del Rio, CUBA on October 19, 1919.

His professional career began some forty-five years ago, playing flute with an orchestra that consisted of his own family. Led by his father, ALBERTO FAJARDO, who was a great, well-known clarinetist in his own right, this musical family had his sister, HILDA FAJARDO on piano, brother ALBERTO on violin and JOSE himself on flute.

He soon struck out on his own and played with many bands, the most notable being the Cuban "ORQUESTA TIPICIA", which was also known as the "Orquesta De Viento" because of its wide use of horns before the evolution of Charanga music as it is known today. Horns are no longer an internal part of Charanga music, with the emphasis being on flute and violins. After having played Cuban Charanga music in many countries and large cities for years, FAJARDO feels today it is refining itself to a good sound. In 1975 FAJARDO signed a long-term recording contract and became part of the COCO RECORDS family. His first album on the Coco label, "LA RAIZ DE LA CHARANGA" was produced by HARVEY AVERNE and has enjoyed tremendous popularity. FAJARDO has recently completed an album entitled "EL TALENTO TOTAL" and the title exemplifies his total talent — band leader, flutist, he also composed and arranged all the songs on this LP. The album produced by RAY BARRETTO in association with HARVEY AVERNE, is a blend of traditional Charanga music with today's modern sounds.

Today, JOSE FAJARDO is firmly established as an institution in Charanga music. There are few fathers in today's Latin Music, and FAJARDO is one. □

QUAKES NEW COACH: TERRY FISHER

The Earthquakes have a new head coach, and while he's not making the campaign promises reserved for politicians and coaches, his enthusiasm jolts one into BIG thoughts.

Terry Fisher, 28 years old and the youngest head coach in professional sports, was named to the San Jose coaching position on June 19. The new leader immediately set forth his goals at a press conference held at the LeBaron Hotel.

"We must get the team's enthusiasm back and get the best things out of the best people," Fisher commented. "There is sufficient talent on this team to make a run at the playoffs, but it is up to them, and it will be my challenge to see that we get there."

The stocky blonde has coached in the North American Soccer League for three and a half seasons prior to joining the Quakes, all of that experience with the rival Los Angeles Aztecs. In 1975, 1976 and 1977 the Aztecs qualified for league playoffs under the guidance of Fisher. Last season's Aztecs squad led the NASL in total goals, scoring an impressive 65 goals in 26 contests.

Before Fisher was offered his chance to coach professional', he was a very successful head coach in the college ranks. In 1972, at Whittier College in Southern California, Fisher coached the varsity squad to an 11-3-2 mark, good enough for the conference championship and qualification in the NAIA tournament. The following season Fisher was offered and accepted the head duties with the UCLA Bruins where he earned marks of 19-1-4 and 15-3-4 over two seasons. Both campaigns saw the Bruins qualify for the final-four tournament.

"I despise defensive soccer," says Fisher. "I have an attacking philosophy which has worked in the past and I see no reason to change that here. Why lose 1-0? Why not 7-6? I believe in putting opposing teams, especially when we are at home, under pressure."

Fisher's challenge in San Jose is a long - term opportunity, according to Earthquakes owner Tony Kovac. For the 1978 season, there are 12 games remaining in the regular season and seven of those are at home. Fisher is honest and forthright and looks forward to building the Quakes squad into a winning team. More goals and more wins, that's what Mr. Fisher is all about.

Welcome to San Jose, Terry. □

EL GLOBO DE ORO

RICARDO CERATTO/ BIOGRAFIA

Ricardo nació en Loma Alta, un pequeño pueblo de la provincia de Santa Fe, en Argentina. Desde muy pequeño sintió vocación por la música, a la vez que le atraía el acordeón como nada en el mundo. Su primer acordeón fue regalo de su abuelo, cuando apenas tenía 10 años. En poco tiempo ya tocaba de oído varias canciones populares. Más tarde formó parte de un grupo musical; y el pequeño acordeonista ya era acontecimiento en la ciudad de Gálvez, cerca de Loma Alta.

Tiempo después emprendió la aventura que sería definitiva en su carrera: viajar a Europa. Llegó a España con solo 50 pesetas, le costó abrirse camino, hasta que consiguió formar parte de una orquesta que tocaba en un centro nocturno.

Ricardo Ceratto empezaba a dar sus primeros pasos como cantante e interprete del acordeón, instrumento del que ya se le consideraba un virtuoso. En España consiguió convertirse en un buen fabricante de canciones, que le abrió las puertas como autor, después de cinco años de continua lucha—afirma Ceratto. A partir de entonces empezó a escribir con mayor empeño hasta situarse como compositor de fama con un primer lugar en popularidad.

Los Festivales ayudaron definitivamente a consolidar su reputación como compositor de renombre. El de Mallorca por ejemplo, durante cuatro años consecutivos, le otorgó el primer premio como la mejor canción de Autor Hispanoamericano, y un primer premio también para otra de sus canciones, interpretada por el italiano Tony Dallara. En el Festival del Atlántico, en Tenerife (Canarias) obtuvo también el primer lugar. En el Festival de Miño de Grese (Galicia) se llevó el primero y el segundo lugar. En 1969 el primer lugar de Eusovisión. En el III Festival OTI junto con Nidia Caro ganó el primer lugar con la canción "HOY CANTO POR CANTAR" con la cual se dió a conocer en México.

Inmediatamente popularizó en México, Estados Unidos, Puerto Rico y Latinoamérica, los temas "QUE MAS DA", "ME ESTOY ACOSTUMBRANDO A TI", "UN MINUTO DE SILENCIO", "EXCESO DE EQUIPAJE". etc. que lo llevaron a la cúspide de su carrera ya no sólo como compositor sino también como interprete.

Acaba de salir al mercado el cuarto Long Play de RICARDO CERATTO, que promete ser un éxito más en su larga carrera artística.

Acupuncture

by LUCY ZUNIGA

Acupuncture is a medical procedure in which hair-thin needles are inserted in the body at certain well-defined points. It has become the preferred method of anesthesia in China.

Utilizing acupuncture as the only pain-killer, major operations are performed on conscious patients. The Medical Tribune reported: "Dr. White and Dr. Diamond, both cardiologists, watched open heart surgery in Peking with acupuncture anesthesia. They said that the patient was awake, alert, relaxed during surgery, and that the surgery was performed as well as any they had ever seen.

In an attempt to explain some of these mystifying aspects of pain, a "gate theory" has been offered. Opening and closing of a so-called "gate" in the spinal cord is said to either permit or block passage of pain signals to the brain. Conversely, the brain initiates impulses to the appropriate motor nerves which function to control and coordinate the whole physiological system. It may seem simple to explain acupuncture in terms of the human nervous system, but in practice, the routes of the impulses follow what is called the meridian system. The meridian system consists of 12 pairs of main meridians, each of the 12 paired meridians is associated with a particular physiological unit of the body. The units are the 12 basic organs distinguished in Chinese medicine: the lungs, heart, large intestine, the small intestine, kidneys, bladder, stomach, the spleen, the pericardium, the gallbladder, and the liver. There are 365 acupuncture points over the meridians, half of them lie above the nerve fibers and the other half being as close as within 1/2 cm.

Thus, it is thought, acupuncture may prevent undergoing open heart surgery, by triggering impulses that close the spinal-cord gate to block pain signals from reaching the brain.

Acupuncture is but one of four traditional Chinese medical sciences, the other three are herbology, massage, and cupping. Trained Chinese acupuncturist are skilled in all four healing arts. There are four methods of diagnosing a disease in Chinese medicine. They are examinations by observation, listening, interrogation and pulse diagnosis Observation is based on the physical appearance of the patient including the face, eyes, and tongue. Listening is based on the breath and the voice. The purpose of interrogation is to take into consideration the history and symptoms of the illness. Instead of giving the disease a name, the Chinese doctor will study the pulses and so determine what kind of treatment is needed to restore these two forces in balance.

The pulse diagnosis is both a science and an art. Figure 2 describes how pulse diagnosis works, though in actual practice, it can only be satisfactorily learned by careful judgment and accumulated experience.

Of the four methods, the last one is most important and the other three are just to help confirm the findings from the pulse diagnosis.

Acupuncture has no equivalent and is, therefore, at first glance, often regarded as rather foreign and highly suspicious. It seems strange if not impossible, that a thin needle placed in the skin can actually cure diseases and kill pain. Acupuncture has been successful in treatments of weight control, nervousness, insomnia, allergy, migraine headaches, sinusitis, arthritis, back problem, hypertension and digestive problems. □

THE PUNCH BOWL

The earthy column with the Latin touch.

by Kharis Avril

Hulio luv! Hola cariño! Allo, allah, como va la cosa . . .

ALL YOU WANTED TO KNOW ABOUT THE U.S. SUPREME COURT AND WERE AFRAID TO ASK.

"The judicial power of the United States (article III of the Constitution) shall be vested in one Supreme Court . . ."

The Justices are appointed by the President. Sometimes their policies outlive them.

The prresent Court, the Burger Court (after Chief Burger) is also known as the Nixon Court.

Thehe are nine Justices sitting. Two more have courtesy chambers in the Washington D.C. building, although they are retired.

The nine Justices are attended by 36 Court clerks who are the cream of top law graduates. Approximately 30,000 new lawyers obtain their diplomas each year. There are no blacks or Hispanics among the 36.

The Justice chambers are guarded by a pair of six and half ton bronze doors manned by armed police officers.

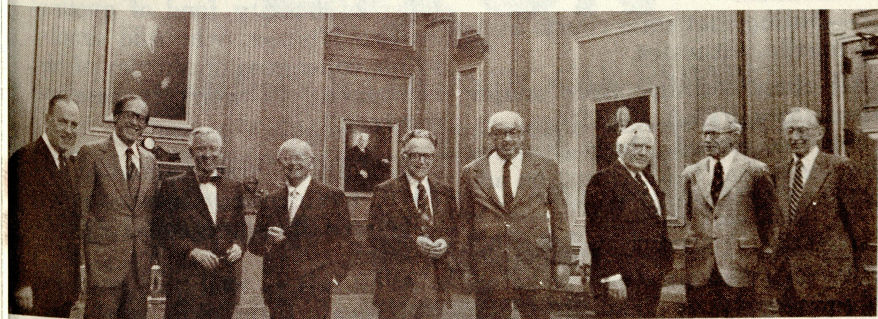

Outside the courtroom, in the Great Hall, a queue of tourists wait each day while court is in session to be admitted to hear a case being argued.

The waiting tourist may admire a famous portrait, Lady Justice, wearing a blindfold.

Is this dame color blind as well? Perhaps it is the Nixon Court that is color blind.

The court's decision in the Bakke case created tidal waves, with vast and diverse interpretations of the six separate opinions given in 154 pages.

As interpreters of the Constitution, these nine Justices form the court of last resort. Yet . . . if the so-called American Dream were a reality . . . if we had a fair-minded society without prejudice or malice toward some (to paraphrase Lincoln) . . . would not students be admitted in direct Clerking for the Supreme Court is an exclusive privilege.

This year three women were chosen . . . thank you Bwana!

proportion to their numbers in that society?

Were it done this way, the Supreme Court would not have needed to give six separate opinions in 154 pages about a 38-year-old engineer named Bakke, white, with point 3.5 grades, who claimed he was not admitted to the school of Medicine in Davis because his place was given to a less qualified member of a racial minority in a now unlawful quota program.

Perhaps fortunately for us, the nine Justices have recessed and "gone to the hills" . . . but only after:

- * "Saying no" to seven dirty words ever being broadcasted over the airwaves which are supposedly owned by US (not U.S., but you and me).

- * Ruling that government need not disclose information it prefers to withhold. A kind of "it's none of your business" to public whose taxes pay expenses and salaries of those who sit in the seats of power.

Too bad for Mr. Nixon this ruling was not in effect at the time of Watergate.

- *—Ruling that reporters may be made to disclose their sources of information and that—with a search warrant—their files may be examined.

- *—Ruling that state courts may gag hostile witnesses.

All these rulings were major defeats to a FREE PRESS.

For the record, those Justices who voted that Bakke must be admitted to med-school were:

1—CHIEF JUSTICE WARREN BURGER (who once was picketed simultaneously by "right to life" anti abortion demonstrators and by gay liberation groups).

2—JUSTICE JOHN PAUL STEVENS, 56, the latest appointee.

3—POTTER STEWAR, 62, President Eisenhower's fifth and last Court appointee (in 1958).

4—WILLIAM REHNQUIST, 52, youngest of the nine Justices who was appointed by Richard Nixon in 1972.

5—LEWIS POWELL, 69, also a Nixon appointee who sided with the other four on grounds that UC Davis School of Medicine had failed to prove to the court that Bakke would have been barred had there been on minority admission program.

THE MINORITY OPINION:

That Bakke should not be admitted to the School of Medicine was expressed by these four judges:

1—THURGOOD MARSHALL, 68, the first black ever appointed to the court (by LBJ) in 1969).

2—WILLIAM BRENNAN, 70, appointed in 1957 and now in his 21st year on the bench, and thus the Court's senior member.

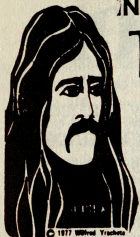

3—BYRON WHITE, 59, former All-American football star at Colorado University (where he was known as "Whizzer") . . . He was appointed by President John F. Kennedy.

4—HARRY BLACKMUN, 68, a lover of brevity fond of quoting Justice Holmes, who said simply to his colleagues on the day of his retirement, "I won't be here tomorrow."

Blackmun was appointed in 1970, having been nominated by—believe it or not—Richard M. Nixon.

Well, all is well . . . or is it? Fly away little bird, may your perching be on auspicious branches. Ciao bambino! Au revoir! Hasta la otra che! Peace. love and joy!

heart association

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

The Heart Association of Santa Clara County has a wide variety of community services, professional education, and research programs on heart disease, high blood pressure, nutrition and stroke.

Called "Touching the Heart of the Community," these programs help to meet the needs of victims of cardiovascular disease, which is still America's number one killer.

The community services' program offers nutrition counseling service, on a doctor's referral, for low sodium, controlled fat, diabetic or weight reduction diets.

Another program offered is coordination of community services to help meet the needs of cardiac and stroke patients through information and referral services. People with special needs are brought in contact with the agency qualified to help them.

There also are school health programs designed to assist school nurses, teachers and students in elementary, secondary and college levels, by furnishing guidance and educational materials on cardiovascular disease.

A speakers bureau offers talks by doctor's, nurses and dieticians on a wide variety of topics.

The Parents for Heart Club is open to families with a child who has either a congenital heart defect, or an acquired heart condition, and also is open to other interested persons.

Volunteers are an important part of the work performed by the heart association, and according to Tony Starbird, executive director of the local heart group, "there would absolutely be no heart association without them."

HABLANDO DE LIBROS

Nunca como ahora se han publicado tantos libros, entre ellos hay lectura para todos los gustos y orientación para todos los conocimientos, casi no hay actividad en la vida de la humanidad que no esté entre los libros que se han impreso.

Hay libros de literatura, historia, matemáticas, geografía, filosofía, religión, medicina, agricultura, arte, pintura, escultura y la lista es interminable. También hay libros que no son precisamente de estudio, aunque abarcan muchos conocimientos y dan entretenimiento como deportes, novelas, cuentos, comedias, terroríficos, macabros, leyendas, poesías, viajes, etc., etc.

Entre todos ellos el lector puede escoger aquel que sea más de su agrado. Cuando un lector compra uno o varios libros, no conoce su

Los libros de ficción son los favoritos de gran cantidad de lectores, ellos saben que lo que van a leer no es verdad, pero se entretienen por la forma en que el autor presenta a los personajes o lugares que describe en su libro. El Ingenioso Hidalgo Don Quijote de la Mancha, de Cervantes Saavedra, Los Miserables, de Victor Hugo. El Conde de Monte Cristo, de Alejandro Dumas hijo. La Divina Comedia, de Dante Alighieri, Tom Sawyer, de Mark Twain y otras muchas más. Todas ellas son obras de ficción, es decir, los personajes no son reales, pero cada uno de los autores les dió un toque de realidad a los actores y a los lugares que describen y no cabe duda que se han escrito magníficas obras que han logrado agradar a muchas generaciones y permanecer como inmortales obras clásicas.

contenido y tiene que guiarse por el título o el nombre del autor. En algunos casos se usa hacer una síntesis del argumento o tema que se trata en el libro; además una corta biografía del autor en la cubierta del libro, en esa forma el lector se da cuenta poco más o menos de la trama del libro y la capacidad de el autor.

De la cantidad de libros que saleyn diariamente de las imprentas, sólo un reducido número pasará a la posteridad y conservará el favor del público lector. Puede ser el caracter de los personajes, la belleza de los paisajes que describa, lo interesante del tema o lo chusco de la situación, la belleza de la heroína o lo pintoresco de la narración.

En nuestro medio tenemos algunas personas que matan sus socios dedicándose a la pintura, o a tocar algún instrumento musical, a componer poesías a leer algún libro, en fin ocupan sus ratos en diferentes actividades.

A mi me gusta leer y entre los libros que he leído últimamente me ha hecho pasar muy buenos ratos un libro que leí, escrito por un autor local, tiene muy buenas puntadas, es de actualidad, describe lugares muy conocidos, la trama es muy interesante, entrega un mensaje a la juventud, es una tragicomedia en el ambiente local, en la que los inberbes traficantes de drogas reciben una buena lección y el aspirante a Bullfighter Champ y su Manager aprenden que los golpes de la vida quitan lo penitente.

El libro lleva por título: MANO A MANO GRINGO CHICANO y su autor es el Sr. Rudy Tenes.

El Sr. Rudy Tenes no es escritor de profesión, él mata sus ratos de ocio escribiendo, por su esfuerzo el escribir MANO A MANO GRINGO CHICANO se deduce que tiene facultades para escribir y con seguridad su primer libro será un verdadero éxito; el lenguaje que uso es una revoltura de Español, Inglés y caló en los dos idiomas, a pesar de ese lenguaje el libro es ligero, fácil de leer y de mucho humorismo.

La profesión del Sr. Rudy Tenes es joyero, es Co-propietario de la Joyería ESMERALDA JEWELERS, localizada en Lawrence Square, 3511 del Camino Real en Santa Clara, Ca. En los ratos que le deja libre su trabajo en la joyería ha escrito su Novela Tragicómica MANO A MANO GRINGO CHICANO, QUE CON TODA SEGURIDAD SERA UN EXITO.

LUIS JUAREZ

The Chicano is an individual of Mexican descent that represents today a new ethnic breed. He is the product of the Mexican-American that roamed this country only a few short years ago.

The Mexican-American himself was the direct descendant of the "Spanish" now an extinct species that inhabited the Southwest for several generations.

The metamorphosis from "Spanish" to Chicano took place in the amazingly short period of 15 years because examples of the "Spanish" species were quite prevalent in this valley as late as the early 1960s.

The "Spanish" species in its time existed in a hostile environment and had to maintain a delicate social balance in order to survive. For the aspiring "Spanish" individual it required that he undergo a radical behavioral change in order to leave the barrios for the more affluent Anglo-Saxon residential areas, and the prune orchards for the blue and white collar jobs in industry for government.

This social change was not an easy one, it required first of all total abstention from speaking Spanish in public, avoidance of being seen with other Mexicans, and most important, Anglizing the spelling of his first name and the pronunciation of his last name.

If he could change the spelling of his last name to make it look and sound Italian or Portuguese, so much the better were his chances of acceptance in the Anglo world.

ish" in those days. He lived under constant fear of exposure. Especially if he was blonde or fair skinned and could pass as an Anglo.

If he was dark completed "Mexican-like," and he had been able to Anglicize enough to be "accepted," the problem of being exposed did not really exist because everybody knew he was Mexican, only that no one ever talked about it. The situation became uncomfortable at times, anyway.

Nevertheless, in order to keep his near-Anglo status, he had to keep his distance from the other Mexicans and never divulge or give away his Mexican customs such as bringing tacos to work in his lunch pail or biting into a green chile in front of everybody when he ate his lunch.

Then a social conscience began to develop in the nation in the early 1960s. The civil rights movement had by then taken a strong hold in our society and the "colored people" were making fast gains. It was the era of liberalism and ethnic tolerance.

These social changes brought a sudden end to the remaining "Spanish" species that were already by that time disappearing because government and agencies at all levels began to focus their attention to our needs and soon there was diversity of community action programs that put the "sleeping giant" on his feet and ready to go.

The era of the Mexican-American was short but very significant in the impact it had on the cultural, economic, and political status of the group.

The Mexican-American began in large numbers and reappearing as Mexican-Americans.

Massive federal grants began to flow in, justified by the number of Mexican-Americans unemployed, school dropouts, in poverty, etc.

Mexican - American leadership began to appear in unprecedented numbers. At last it became clear we were Mexican-Americans, and we had been deprived of our rights for generations, and now our time had come to speak out and demand what was rightfully ours.

Things worked out rather well to learn how to play the game of how to get the most mileage out of what had apparently been liabilities in the past.

Knowledge of good Spanish and Mexican culture became popular and these were surfaced to develop ethnic pride. Long lost Mexican-Americans began to return to the flock.

About the same time that the "colored people" became "blacks, the Mexican-Americans became Chicanos.

These were primarily young Mexican-Americans that constituted a totally new breed. They were the result of an unstable and precarious melting of the Spanish conquest, geography, racial discrimination and cultural residuals from Mexico.

The Chicano today is a schizolingual and he can mix English and Spanish in every sentence and effectively relay his message to his fellow Chicanos. He also has combined U.S. and Mexican culture plus something of his own into a unique Chicano culture.

Now for the first time, the individual of Mexican origin in this country feels ethnic pride and he can be himself. He is confident in his abilities and is making good use of them to advance his socioeconomic status.

Chicanos are graduating from colleges and universities in record numbers, more are going into businesses and professions. The Chicano is now involved in politics and in organizations designed to bring about civic changes that will better meet his needs.

Once the Chicano has made it socially and economically and has gained enough confidence and pride in himself, what happens next? Where does he go from there?

I believe the Chicano era will disappear when that happens. Our people of Mexican descent in this country, no doubt, will continue to change, but the change will probably be in more than one direction and not necessarily as a group.

It also won't be in the direction of Anglo-Saxon conformity, but rather in a direction that will ultimately blend and merge into a way of living that is distinctly "American," whatever that means.
