

State Journal-Register / Chris Covatta

Hank Lacayo, national political director for the United Auto Workers, during a reception last week at the new UAW political action office in Springfield. "It's necessary to have your presence visible in capital cities nowadays," he says.

Labor eyes political comeback