

COLLEGE UNION PASSES 4 TO 1

By MICHAEL CARTER

In a smashing reversal of last year's vote, SF State students have voted four to one in favor of a College Union.

The tally climaxed two days of voting that saw over 2000 students trek to the polls. This is less than half the number of votes cast last Spring.

As seven election officials hovered over $12,000 worth of whirring and clicking IBM counting machines, the number of yes votes continued to rise.

Only 50 minutes after the feverish activity had begun, the results were known.

One administrator suggested martinis for everyone in celebration of the historic event.

The man most pleased was Jim Heltsley, chairman of the College Union Council (CUC), who had predicted an 80 per cent affirmative vote.

The actual yes count was 1721 votes, 80.5 per cent of the 2136 total. There were 415 no votes, 19.5 per cent of the total votes cast.

The victory ended years of debate and open dissension about the College Union proposal.

Last Spring the measure was sent down to defeat when only 55 per cent of those voting okeyed the proposal. The Union vote requires a two-thirds majority for passage.

Heltsley termed the vote light, for a two day election, but that didn't seem to bother him in the least.

"The next step," said Heltsley, "is to secure an architect to draw plans for the estimated $3.9 million structure."

"We should have a number of architects to be submitted for approval by the President and the State College Trustees by no later than July," he added.

Next Fall students will be given an opportunity to discuss and decide what kinds of facilities they want included in the Union.

The student-dominated CUC will take the results of the proposals, suggestions, and polls under consideration and submit their findings to the architects.

Upon completion of the plans, construction will begin. The estimated time of completion of the building Union is early 1969.

Beginning the semester after completion, all students will be assessed an estimated $8 a semester to finance the building. Part-time students would be required to pay approximately $4.

Since 1960 the Associated Students budget has allocated $45,000 annually to the Union fund. Although the student legislature did not set any funds aside last year, the CUC still has a $200,000 kitty with which to get the ball rolling.

The site of the Union is pegged for the area now occupied by the Tubs, the crowded temporary buildings that were erected in the early fifties.

This location is probably the most ideal, affording easy access from all parts of the campus.

Consulting architects and CUC officials have assured students that the Union will serve not only a functional purpose, but will be aesthetically pleasing.

'Childlike energy' on quad

"Pitiful" or just fun," this was part of the event held on the campus quad yesterday by the Contemporary Arts Festival-folk. Dance students wiggled, wobbled, and jumped around the lawn; later, others perched from high atop trees — all, apparently, in the aesthetical name of the arts.

By ANN WEILL

Well, it could have been any number of things, but according to Norma Lestiko, of recent Gallery Lounge fame, it was just "fun."

It sure was. But mainly for the participants, since the noonday sun has a way of melting spirits, as well as ice cream.

Another part of the Contemporary Arts Festival, an "Event," as it were, was danced, performed, staged, or whatever on the Commons lawn Wednesday.

No one was too sure.

Skiping, jumping, running and generally fooling around from 10 a.m. on were about 20 members of the Marin Dance Co-ops, taught by Miss Lestiko.

All high school students, except for two on the college level, they come from Marin County high schools.

Their dance classes are held once a week and according to Miss Lestiko, try to "sustain the wonderful childlike energy they lose as adults" through these dance structures.

They were invited by Peter Weiss, an English major here.

They had never performed outdoors before.

That was fairly obvious to the crowds that gathered for the group's hourly melange of horsing around.

Student passersby made a variety of comments about the scene.

But probably the most profound of opinions was uttered when the "dancers" began making weird sounds while jumping around in a circle.

It was the bark of an old hound dog, who had just seen something that was too much.

As for Miss Lestiko, she held on to her turtle-necked sweater and green skirt in the surprise move of the day.

McClatchy to talk on state colleges

The history, structure, budget, problems and future of the state college system will be discussed tonight by Leo McClatchy, professor of accounting and law, at 7:30 p.m. in the Frederic Burk Auditorium.

McClatchy was Chairman of the SF State Academic Senate and is currently one of three SF State members of the Statewide Academic Senate. He is considered one of the most knowledgeable persons on campus about the California state college system.

He will trace the development of the state college system from a two year all women's normal school training only elementary school teachers to the present system offering a Master's Degree.

He will also outline the growth of the system. Before

WWII there were only about 13,000 students enrolled in the entire system. From this small beginning the system has grown into the "largest system of highest education in the world," he said.

McClatchy said that one of the major problems facing the state college system is for each campus to retain its unique character. "Each serves the individual needs and requirements of its respective community."

He said the colleges can only meet their individual requirements if they retain a certain level of autonomy.

He advocates a system of financing whereby the state colleges have the authority to spend funds appropriated by the California State Legislature to suit the needs of the particular campus.

Each college only should be held responsible for post-audit review to be sure the money was spent for valid reasons, he said.

The power structure again

Political power derives from ownership of material resources, Jack Minnis, research director of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), said in an informal seminar here last week.

The chain-smoking writer of the pamphlet, "The Care and Feeding of Power Structures," stressed the need for radical alterations of the prevalent system by which financial elites run the US. He said power to direct material resources, not voting rights, would gain freedom for the Negro.

He said protests will not have any impact until people in the peace movement find out how to put pressure on the power structure. And this can only be done, he added, once they discover who owns and hence controls the material resources of the country.

Minnis told the history of SNCC research activities in the South. There, SNCC has decided, racial inequality isn't really the problem; structural changes are needed.

SNCC has completed fact sheets on the counties in Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and Georgia, Minnis said, exposing the individuals controlling the various businesses as well as their ties with nation-wide and world-wide operations.

When SNCC workers discover that a large northern corporation in the South managed by liberals practices discrimination or doesn't use its power to prevent injustices, SNCC can picket or otherwise embarrass the corporation in the north.

While admitting the limitations of the "politics of embarrassment," Minnis said some firms can be "threatened."

He said the Alabama Democratic Party was forced into abandoning its slogan of white supremacy through the simple technique of going to the people rather than to the ADP itself.

SNCC simply printed up a handbill for distribution to newly registered Negro voters showing the slogan, "White Supremacy," on the seal of the Alabama Democratic Party. Fearing the loss of Negro voters, ADP dropped the slogan from its seal within two weeks, Minnis said.

"While this forced the Alabama Democrats to invite Negroes into their party," Minnis added, "this will not effectively change the southern power structure."

"I don't believe the electoral challenge will work," he said, "but people must learn for themselves that the financial structure is the real power."

Recently SNCC came out strongly urging an end to the war in Viet Nam. Minnis said the war along with some anti-poverty programs have slowed down the civil rights movement in the south.

"Some southern Negroes now have a job for the first time in five years," he said. "They see the war as the reason why they are working and are reluctant to force its end."

He fears the Vietnam war will buy off many civil rights leaders just as World War II bought off the US labor movement.

'Snakeskin' on stage

Snakeskin and his friends will provide most of the action in the Graduate Association's production of Tennessee Williams' "Orpheus Descending" tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre.

Doral Mancini is the third graduate student to produce a play under the Drama Department's new experimental Master's Thesis Project.

The 23-year-old Mrs. Mancini has "wanted to do this play for several years."

It may be more familiar in its movie version, "The Fugitive Kind," starring Marlon Brando.

The play concerns Snake-skin, a guitar player of sorts, played by Walter Turney, and his relationships with women played by Jeannie Chieffo and April Edwards. Another supporting player is Jeff Mason.

Snakeskin is so named because of the jacket of that material he always wears.

The cast of 17 are not all graduate students. Mrs. Mancini was encouraged by the turnout of actors and actresses at the audition.

"Fifty-seven people tried out," she said. "I think we really have a good cast."

Mrs. Mancini has researched Williams and found that this play evolved from an earlier Williams play, "Battle of Angels."

This experimental thesis program is limited to three students per year. The two previous plays were Shakespeare's "The Winter's Tale," and Carl Tunberg's "Big Foot Brown."

After directing this play and finishing her thesis, Mrs. Mancini wishes to do work in little theatre groups.

Right now, though, she's concentrating on "Orpheus Descending." Besides to-

Pig-skin fans get an asphalt wallow

The $178,000 revamping of this campus' 29-year-old track and field is nearing completion.

The old clay track will go the way of isinglass and 5 cent beer as a new, all-weather, rubberized asphalt surface is rolled out.

Pig-skin fans who attend one of the six games per season should notice fewer divots and mud covered players littering the field as the new turf takes root in a more solid soil foundation, William Charleston, chief of plant operations said.

"The field is built in a canyon where there is no natural drainage. We've installed pipes to carry away the excess water and dry the field," Charleston said.

The new track surface, Grass-tex, is now being used at Foothill and UC at Berkeley with good results, he said.

Bears win in 10 innings

Baseballers almost do it

By RICHARD R. EMBICK

The SF State baseball team turned in one of its best performances of the year Tuesday, but lost, 8-5, in 10 innings to a persistent UC Berkeley team.

Leading throughout most of the contest, the Gators saw the Golden Bears tally three runs in the top of the 10th to take the lead for the first, but final, time.

The Gators scored all five of their runs in the bottom of the first off Cal ace Andy Messersmith. Dick Schultze started the Gator fireworks by getting a single after one out. Gerald Gray drilled a ground-rule double to right, advancing Schultze to third. Tom Martinez reached first safely on an error by Messersmith, with Schultze scoring. Wayne Morgan hit one through third-baseman Tom Cooper allowing Gray and Martinez to score.

Les Hearn, who has been hitting the long ball of late for the Gators, then laced a triple to right-center, bringing home Morgan for the fifth run.

Ron Fell, making his first start of the season, had the responsibility of preserving the Gators' five run lead. Fell pitched fairly well for five innings, giving up two runs in the second and one in the third, before tiring in the sixth.

In the California sixth, the Gators received a fine clutch performance from reliever Mark Allen.

Coming on with no outs and the bases loaded, Allen got Messersmith to pop out to second, struck out lead off batter Bob Rebuschatis, and made second-baseman Bob Leatherwood pop out to second. The Bears tallied only one run that inning, and that came off Fell.

The Golden Bears scored once in the eighth to tie the score and set the stage for a very exciting bottom of the ninth that saw the Gators fall just short of upsetting the mighty Bears.

Hiroshi Sakamoto led off with a single. Mark Allen placed a bunt down the first base line, which first-baseman Rebuschatis picked up and waited to tag Allen.

Charging down the line like a wild elephant, Allen gave the Bear first-sacker a forearm rip that would have been second only to a Sam Huff special. The ball went flying out of the mitt and Allen stood on first safely with Sakamoto going all the way to third.

With no outs and runners on first and third, Dick Barnett attempted a squeeze bunt. The ball was popped up to third and Sakamoto was doubled off easily to erase any Gator hopes of winning in regulation time.

Messersmith took advantage of this stroke of luck and fanned Schultze.

California scored three runs in the 10th to put the game out of reach of the Gators.

The Gators once again played great defense as they made no errors. They also collected five runs and 10 hits off one of the top hurlers in the bay area.

The next home game is Saturday, a Far Western Conference double-header against CS Hayward beginning at noon.

Golfers upset Cal

The Gator golfers copped a surprising victory Tuesday, upsetting powerful UC Berkeley, 16½-10½.

Joel Kuechle, competing as the Gators' sixth man, won medalist honors with a 73 at the Orinda Country Club.

SF State's top twosome of Bob Davis and Vic Kulik notched 8½ points of a possible nine. Davis shot a 74 to down Cal's Hans Janzen (80), 3-0. Kulik shot a 79 to Down Mike Dove (81), 2½-½. The team total went to the Gators, 3-0.

Mike Soden and Jim Roman, the Gators' second twosome, were clobbered by Greg Sominoff and Bob Powell. Soden shot a 79 and Roman a 78, but the Berkeliens shot a 77 and 75 respectively to win eight of nine points.

The final twosome of John Smith and Kuechle won the match by taking seven of nine points. Smith shot an 80 to tie, 1½-1½, with Neil Pearson, who shot a 76. Kuechle won by 10 strokes over Jeff Pearl (73 to 83) to ice the match. The team score went to SF, 2½-½.

The win was SF State's third against four setbacks. The Gators return to action today against Sacramento State in a Far Western Conference match at Harding Park.

Tennis team scarfs, wins

By JIM VASZKO

The Gator netters, scourge of the FWC, swagger up to Sacramento Saturday in hopes of swatting the Sacramento State Hornets and getting another taste of honeyed victory—a taste much sweeter than Coke.

But Coke is what keeps the netters on their tippy toes, as was discovered during the CS Hayward match last week.

After the singles matches were over last Saturday, the Gators went on a spectacular "intermission snack rampage." They devoured sandwiches, Cokes, and corn chips, and then, burping lightly, challenged Hayward in the doubles.

Amazingly, not one Gator threw up, and they won two out of three to boot! An investigation is under way to determine how they held it all down.

Think of the hunger pangs the netters will feel on their long trek to Sacramento Saturday. Perhaps some volunteers could make a couple dozen sandwiches for the outing. If so, contact Elvin Johnson in Gym 303 for a list of ingredients.
