

'The truth is...'

Dodd comments--a little

President Paul A. Dodd stated yesterday that announcement of the appointments of 15 new administrators made a month ago was partially premature.

The truth is, Dodd said, that several of the appointments announced have not yet received the final approval of Chancellor Dumke or the State college trustees.

Those who have not yet been officially approved are:

Prof. John S. Hensill, School of Biological Science; Prof. Jordan M. Churchill, School of Humanities, Language and Literature; Prof. Robert A. Thornton, School of Physical Sciences; Associate Prof. Eldon L. Modisette, School of Social Science; Prof. Aubrey Hann, School of Professional Education; Prof. Douglas A. Fessenden, School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation; and Associate Prof. William Niven, School of Business.

These administrators will function on a temporary basis until their appointments are officially approved, Dodd said.

Those appointments which are officially approved are: Dr. Stanley Paulson, vice president in charge of academic affairs; Dr. J. Fenton McKenna, dean of the school of Creative Arts; Dr. Daniel Feder, dean of the School of Humanities and Sciences; Dr. Robert Smith, dean of the School of Education; Dr. George Feliz, dean of the graduate division.

Following are some of the questions also asked of President Dodd and his replies.

• Two weeks ago, certain charges were leveled at you in the downtown papers which in effect stated that you had reorganized yourself into grave troubles with the state college trustees. Would you care to comment on this?

"No comment."

• The papers stated that the trustees are upset because Dr. Samuel C. McCulloch was relieved as dean of the college. Have you heard from Chancellor Dumke or the trustees about this?

"No comment."

• Could you say why the list of administrative appointments was released without the approval of Chancellor Dumke?

"Sorry, no comment."

• Do you know what changes, if any, the trustees are planning on making in your reorganization plan?

"No, I'm sorry. I would rather not comment on this subject until the time is right."

Cuban travelers air views on platform, want to return

Five SF State students described their experiences in Cuba and announced hopes of making another trip in a panel discussion yesterday on the Speakers Platform.

They told an audience of about 300 supporters, opponents and the curious, that their decision to visit the island was "based on a moral decision by individuals."

Feeling that the State Department's ban on travel to Cuba is immoral, the students decided to commit an "act of defiance."

John Milton, one of the travelers, rejected the Department statement that the ban is imposed because the Government is unable to protect citizens in nations without American consulates.

"There is something in Cuba the State Department doesn't want us to see," Milton said.

That something, according to Milton, Eric Johnson, Luria Castell, and Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Jencks, is social and economic progress that could inspire revolution in other Latin American countries.

As the travelers spoke, two students handed out leaflets in the crowd. One, from the Committee to Uphold the Right to Travel, announced a rally in favor of the students at 2 p.m. Saturday in the San Francisco civic center.

The other, from the Ad Hoc Committee for a Free Cuba, announced a rally against the travelers, same time, same place.

Most of the 58 students who went to Cuba had "humanist" motives, the speakers said.

Eight called themselves socialists, but most of the others wanted to see Cuba for themselves and defy the travel ban.

After a short introduction, the students answered questions from the audience.

The students had some criticism for Cuba, but were generally in favor of Castro's administration.

Illiteracy, they said, has been "completely wiped out" in Cuba.

Material progress has also been great, they reported. One said he found 13 people living in a three-bedroom home, but learned that before the revolution there had been 15 in a one-room shack with a dirt floor.

Widespread school construction was also reported.

Racial discrimination in Cuba has disappeared, the students said.

The differences in racial relations between the United States and Cuba is one cause for the ban, Milton argued. "If the Cuban government steps in and gets rid of discrimination, why can't the American Government?"

Jencks announced that several of the group would like to visit Cuba again, and return there next year. They are also considering establishing an exchange whereby Cuban students would come to the United States.

The Fair is sponsored by the Associated Students and is open to all campus organizations.

However, the travel ban also effects Cubans visiting the United States.

Health head asks why budget sliced

Dr. Eugene Bossi, director of SF State's Student Health Center is curious why and on what authority the Senate Finance Committee, and in particular Sen. Steven Teale, effected the State College medical budget cut last summer.

"I don't want to take issue with Sen. Teale on a personal basis," said Bossi. "This is not a matter of personalities. However, I would like to know on what basis did he take action to cut the budget?"

"The question is not trying to convince Sen. Teale from my viewpoint," said Bossi. "I can't argue point for point with him. Rather, the question is and should be resolved on this:

"On whose authority decided that the State College health services should be cut, and what these services should be? Is Sen. Teale taking authority on his personal experience?" (Teale is an osteopath in West Point, Calif. in private life.)

"I am talking on my authority in the field of Student health medicine," Bossi said. "I am also talking on the authority of published material in on Student Health Services, Dr. ((Evelyn) Ballard and I can cite references from sources other than materials published by the State Colleges, can Sen. Teale quote such sources?"

"If we try to compare our services to his services (Teale serves a small mountain town of about 3,000 people) it makes no sense," said Bossi.

FOR THE CUT'S EFFECTS on SF State's Counseling Center, see page 3 of today's Gater.

"We are seeing people on a different basis. Teale is in rural medicine, doing the best he can with what he has."

"We at the Health Center are administering a program that is tailored to individual student needs—a group of people with far more diverse backgrounds and problems. I think that it is impossible to compare the two and then to make judgments."

"If the people in the State College system and the Legislature feel they can't afford this program, then they should say so. They haven't, but in effect, the cut has said this."

"I am convinced," said Bossi, "that the health policy in the State Colleges should not be determined seemingly on the authority of one person."

Whitlock speaks to CCF today

The lecture is sponsored by the Collegiate Christian Fellowship.

Playmate

Playmate Carrie Enwright, who appeared dishabille in the center foldout of the July Playboy magazine, visited the Gater office yesterday afternoon. A story on Miss Enwright, who is deployed at 39-24-36, will appear in tomorrow's Gater.

"A funny thing happened...."

Folberg falls in love

"A funny thing happened to me on my way to Europe this summer," said Jay Folberg, smiling wryly, "I decided to get married, instead."

Folberg, last year's AS President who had planned a year-long journey to Europe, had given up his apartment, sold his car and taken "100 million shots in preparation for the journey.

"It was funny," he said, "I was supposed to leave on July 1st, but I just sat for two weeks on the porch of my apartment on my duffle bag—everything else was packed—and thought.

"I must have looked like one of those forlorn puppies," Folberg said, "what indecision!"

"Every day my landlady would come up, pat me on the shoulder and tell me I could stay another day."

Finally, Folberg picked up his duffle bag and went to the Greyhound Station, bound for New York and Europe.

"I went to Oregon instead," said Folberg, smiling sheepishly.

"I popped in on her (red-haired senior, Mary Binton) in Oregon—I really surprised her," he said.

After deciding to marry in February, when Mary graduates from SF State, Jay came right back to San Francisco looking for a job.

Shortly, Folberg returned to Oregon and went to work.

"There I was, right out in the fields, picking beans," Jay said, grinning again.

After the bean session, Folberg went to Dallas, Texas for a life insurance course.

The course came in handy because he is now working for Fidelity Union Life, selling insurance to college men.

"I'll be contacting every male senior on campus to explain our new life insurance program for college men only," said Folberg.

Folberg is also taking several courses at State this semester.

"I hate to give up my life of jest and flirtation," sighed Folberg, "But there comes a time in every man's life...."

"I know people are getting tired of seeing my face and reading about me," he said, "but I'll be around for another six months."

Plans for the future?

Folberg eventually intends to go to law school.

With this man, though, it's hard to tell what will happen.

Chairmen for Homecoming, TGIF needed

Chairmen are needed for the Associated Students sponsored Homecoming and TGIF activities.

Homecoming Week is November 11 to 16 and will feature selection of a Homecoming Queen, a parade, and a football game with the University of Nevada. A dance at the Grand Ballroom at the Fairmont Hotel with Del Courtney's band will end the week's programming.

TGIF, Thank God It's Friday, is an informal series of musical programs held on Friday nights in the Redwood Room. Last year the program featured such acts as the Vince Guaraldi Trio and the Red Garter Band.

Students interested in working on any activities program may contact Joe Persico, activities director, at Hut T-2 between 9 and 11 a.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday or between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday.

FTE limit not reached yet--Reddell

Even though 15,494 students had registered at SF State by last Friday, the college's official enrollment figures are well below the full-time limit of 12,000 set for the college enrollment next Fall, according to Dean of Students Fred D. Reddell.

The limit set by the State College Board of Trustees, refers not to the number of students but to the number of units being taken divided by 15.

If three students are taking five units apiece they add up to one Full Time Equivalent student or FTE. The Trustee A limit refers to 12,000 FTE's. Dean Reddell said that since 4000 SF State students are part-time and the rest average from 13 to 14 units they are only 10,790 FTE's on the campus.

Gater still has staff positions

Gater staff positions are still open. Students interested in working on the daily paper should contact Dr. Walter Geiber, Gater adviser, in HLL 202, or Jim Mildon, acting editor, in HLL 207.

Two units of credit are given for working on the paper by taking Journ. 102, which meets at 9 a.m. Monday and Wednesday.

Cut doesn't affect counseling

SF State's Counseling Center will not be affected by the State Legislature medical budget cut, according to Dr. Ralph Rust.

Rust, head of the counseling service, said that the staff of 11 psychiatric social workers and psychologists and three trainees will be maintained. More, if not the same number of students will be counseled than last year, he said.

"The cut may increase, rather than decrease the number of students we will see this year," said Rust. "However, one aspect that might change this situation is that many students (it is estimated at around 75 per cent) who go to the Health Center (or any doctor for that matter,) with a health problem have a mental problem.

"Since this number will be cut down, a smaller number of these students are liable to come to the Counseling Center," Rust said.

Rust stressed the fact that the Counseling Center is not involved in academic advising and testing. "People often get the two confused," he said.

"What we are trying to do at the Counseling Center," Rust continued, "is to help the student deal with his environment."

"The student must come here voluntarily. No one can force him to come. Also, we make no administrative decisions or recommendations.

"We try to help people express their feelings and emotions about themselves in such a manner that we can respond appropriately and honestly to them. In increasing the person's awareness of himself—reeducating him—perhaps we can change his feelings about the world about him."

"We can't kid people," said Rust. "We are trying to help them honestly respond to feelings that even they may not be aware of."

Last year the Counseling Center saw over 700 students. Rust said that out of last year's graduating seniors, one out of 10 persons had sought out help at one time or another at the Counseling Center.

Poetry Center producing film on late poet Roethke

The Poetry Center is producing a documentary film on Theodore Roethke.

Poet Roethke was a Pulitzer Prize winner, National Book Award winner and Guggenheim Fellow.

He died in late July this year of a heart attack while swimming in a friend's pool, according to Dr. James Schevill, director of the Poetry Center. "He was a great poet," said Schevill.

The film is financed through a loan from the SF State Associated Students. Schevill was so enthused with the preliminary screenings that he expects an ample monetary return for the effort.

He said the Poetry Center had already received requests for the film from the Library of Congress and the New York City Poetry Center.

The tentative title is "In a Dark Time — A Film About Theodore Roethke," featuring reading and commentary by Roethke. When Roethke does not appear on the screen there will be scenes appropriate to his material.

The film is being done by David Myers, a San Francisco photographer known for his film on Photographer Ansel Adams.

Production began in February, 1963, and the film is now in the final editing stages. It will be screened at the San Francisco International Film in October and special screenings on the SF State campus.

The regular Poetry Center program continues this fall on Tuesday, September 24, at 1 p.m. in the Gallery Lounge.

Present will be Lee Anderson, currently a visiting lecturer at UC in Berkeley. In addition to his own works, most recently "Nags Head and Other Poems" he is a research associate in English at Yale University and Co-ordinator of the Yale Series of Recorded Poets.

He recorded 145 American and British poets for the archives of the Library of Congress and Yale.

In 1951, Ruth Witt-Diamant organized the Poetry Center at SF State. She now teaches English in Japan, but her early initiative has left the Poetry Center with an ever-expanding program.

She negotiated Dylan Thomas' first west coast appearance and was instrumental in bringing W.H. Auden to speak at the dedication ceremonies for SF State's present campus.

Carson starts at quarterback; Rowen fearful of slow start

"If we stay close in the first half, we'll have a chance," said Gator head football coach Vic Rowen, in sizing up his team's chances against Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo in the grid season opener Saturday.

A strange attitude for a coach who has a perennially tough team? In Rowen's case, no.

The lack of spring practice, according to Rowen, puts the Gators at a disadvantage in the open stages of their first game.

At Santa Barbara last season, for example, the Gators fell behind 14-0, but pulled the game out in the closing seconds on Bob Baird's field goal.

The job of keeping the Gators close will fall to Mike Carson — who will open at quarterback for SF State Saturday. Of the four quarterbacks who opened the practice season vying for the starting spot, only two will definitely be available for duty on Saturday — Carson and Tom Martinez. Larry Baker is a possible participant.
